WE MAY USE AND DISCLOSE HEALTH INFORMATION ABOUT YOU

We may use and disclose your health information for different purposes, including payment, and health care operations. For each of these categories, we have provided a description and an example. Some information, such as HIV-related information, genetic information, alcohol and/or substance abuse records, and mental health records may be entitled to special confidentiality protections under applicable state and federal law. We will abide by these special protections as they pertain to applicable laws involving these types of records.

Emergency: We may use and disclose your health information to provide you with emergency and health care services. For example, we may disclose information about you to doctors, nurses, technicians, students, or other personnel involved in your care. We may also share this information about you with other agencies or facilities in order to provide the different things you need, such as prescriptions, lab work, and/or continuing care after you leave our facility. Sharing your information for this purpose gives providers the information they need to provide you with appropriate care.

Insurance: We may use and disclose your health information to obtain reimbursement for health care services you receive from us or another entity involved with your care, such as an ambulance company. Payment activities include billing, collections, claims processing, and determinations of eligibility and coverage to obtain payment from you, your insurance company, or another third party. For example, we may send an invoice to your insurance company for your health information to your insurance company or to a benefit payer that is responsible for all or part of your medical bill. If federal or state law requires us to obtain your health information prior to disclosing health information for payment purposes, we will release from you prior to disclosing health information for payment purposes, ask you to sign a release.

Care Operations: We may use and disclose your health information for our health care operations. For example, your health information may be used by the members of the medical staff to evaluate the performance of our health care professionals, assess patients' quality of care and case outcomes, and seek areas of improvement within our facility. We may also combine health information about many patients to decide what additional services we should offer, what services are not needed, and whether certain new treatments are effective.

Appointment Reminders: We may contact you to remind you of an appointment with a provider.

Alternative Options: We may contact you to tell you about or recommend possible alternative treatments or other health-related benefits and services that may be of interest to you.

Individuals Involved in Your Care or Payment for Your Care: We may disclose your health information to your family or friends or any other individual identified by you who may be involved in your care or in the payment for your care. Additionally, we may disclose information about you to a patient representative. If a person has an authority by law to make health care decisions for you, we will treat that patient representative as if they were you.

sponsored activities, including fundraising programs, as permitted by applicable law. If you do not wish to receive such information from us, you may opt out of receiving the communications.

Marketing Activities: We may contact you as part of our marketing activities, as permitted by applicable law.

Required by Law: We may use and disclose your health information as required by law. For example, we may disclose health information for mandated patient registries, communicable disease reporting, and for judicial and administrative proceedings, including disclosures in response to a court order.

Law Enforcement: We may release your health information to assist law enforcement officials with their law enforcement duties. Examples include responding to a court order, subpoena, warrant, summons, or similar process; identifying or locating a suspect, fugitive, or missing person; and reporting criminal conduct on our premises.

To Avert a Serious Threat to Health or Safety: As permitted by applicable law and standards of ethical conduct, we may use and disclose health information if we believe that the use or disclosure is necessary to prevent or lessen a serious and imminent threat to the health or safety of a person or the public.

Disaster-Relief Efforts: When permitted by law, we may coordinate our uses and disclosures of health information with public or private entities assisting in a disaster-relief effort. If you do not want us to disclose your health information to this purpose, you must communicate this to your caregiver so that we do not disclose this information unless done so in order to properly respond to the emergency.

Organ and Tissue Donations: If you are an organ donor, we may release your health information to organizations that handle organ procurement or organ, eye, or tissue transplantation or to an organ donation bank, as necessary to facilitate organ or tissue donation and transplantation.

Military and Veterans: If you are a member of the Armed Forces, domestic or foreign, we may release your health information to military command authorities as authorized or required by law.

Worker's Compensation: We may release your health information for programs that provide benefits for work-related injuries or illnesses.

Public Health Activities: We may disclose your health information for public health activities, including disclosures to:

- Prevent or control disease, injury or disability;
- Report births and deaths;
- Report child abuse or neglect;
- Report reactions to medications or problems with products or devices;
- Notify a person of a recall, repair, or replacement of products or devices;
- Notify a person who may have been exposed to a disease or condition; or
- Notify the appropriate government authority if we believe a patient has been the victim of abuse, neglect, or domestic violence.

Health Oversight Activities: We may disclose health information to federal or state agencies that oversee our activities, including licensing, auditing, and accrediting agencies.

Coroners, Medical Examiners, and Funeral Directors: We may disclose health information to coroners, medical examiners, and funeral directors as necessary for them to carry out their duties.

National Security and Intelligence Activities: We may release your health information to authorized federal officials for intelligence, counterintelligence, or other
